

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates. The cable ownership cap is a crucial element of our democratic media, and it should not be weakened.

What ever happened to anti-trust laws? Do the cable companies now get the same exemption as Major League Baseball? Or is the FCC too busy keeping people from saying "penis" on the radio?
